Kiplinger Wins SABEW General Excellence Award

Washington, D.C. (March 4, 2010)—The Society of American Business Editors and Writers (SABEW) has named Kiplinger's Personal Finance the winner of its 2009 General Excellence Award for giant magazines (circulation of 500,000 and higher). SABEW's 15th annual Best in Business Journalism competition recognizes top publications and Web sites and the best business news reporting during 2009.

"We're honored to receive this prestigious distinction in these harrowing economic times," said Kevin McCormally, editorial director of Kiplinger Washington Editors. "When our readers needed our level-headed, practical personal finance and investing advice more than ever—and when many of our competitors are cutting staff and even cutting frequency—our seasoned magazine staff delivered its best performance ever."

The awards will be presented on Saturday, March 20, in Phoenix, Arizona, during SABEW's 47th annual conference. As winner of the General Excellence Award, Kiplinger's magazine becomes a nominee for SABEW's Best of the Best Award, which will be announced the same evening.

Kiplinger's Personal Finance magazine has been providing millions of Americans with down-to-earth advice on managing their money and achieving financial security since 1947. Along with Kiplinger.com, it is a highly trustworthy source of information on saving and investing, taxes, credit, homeownership, paying for college, retirement planning, car buying, and many other personal-finance topics.
